

Alexandre Attal
Executive Vice President, Enterprise Business Services
Fujitsu America

Alexandre Attal is executive vice president of Enterprise Business Services at Fujitsu America, where he is responsible for all management consulting and application services delivery. Mr. Attal also oversees Fujitsu business operations in India.

Prior to assuming his current position, Mr. Attal served as vice president of Offering Management and Business Development for Fujitsu America. In that role, he managed the portfolio of Consulting and Applications Services solutions delivered by Fujitsu in the United States.

During his career, Mr. Attal has held multiple chief executive officer and senior executive positions for software and services companies that he successfully brought to the next level of growth. Prior to joining Fujitsu America, he served as general manager for X3 ERP at Sage, a leading global provider of business applications.

Before joining Sage, Mr. Attal held a number of senior executive positions at IBM Corporation, as vice president of e-business services for the Americas, vice president of marketing for Global Channels, and vice president of marketing for the Global Mainframe Business. Before his move to the United States in 1997, he was general manager of IBM France.

Mr. Attal has a Master of Engineering degree from Ecole Centrale de Paris. He earned his MBA at Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris. He has also completed a senior executive education with IBM at Wharton.

He is a board member of the One Voice initiative, aimed at enabling non-violent conflict resolution in the Middle East and a founding investor and advisor of edevice, a technology startup.

An avid runner, Mr. Attal has completed thirteen marathons. He is fluent in French and English and speaks Spanish.